Sympatex Technologies GmbH:

Starting signal: Sympatex and Allsport begin a strong collaboration

Unterföhring, June 2011: When choosing the right partner for outdoor clothing, Allsport wouldn't make any compromises: The Austrian business was looking for a company that combines quality, sustainability and a top performance – and they have chosen Sympatex.

Allsport's commitment is the best weather protection for ambitious outdoor athletes. The Vorarlberg specialist for high-quality ski and outdoor clothing has a lot of confidence in Sympatex. The Sympatex membrane is 100% wind- and waterproof and highly breathable. It is made of polyether-ester that represents no health hazard and is therefore absolutely environmentally friendly and skin friendly. In addition, the Sympatex membrane was awarded with the Öko-Tex 100 Standard and certified by bluesign for the high level of production concerning the protection of the environment, health and safety.

Starting in spring/summer 2012, the first collaboration for a high-performance line offers two highly technical outdoor jackets with a Sympatex membrane for women and men respectively. The 3-layer jackets are made of sporty mini ripstop and are very light. They don't take up much packing space and are equipped with reflective logos. The jackets come in the colours lime, black, indigo, orange and cornflower blue, and they are available at a retail price between 249 euros and 329 euros.

Allsport will present the line at this year's OutDoor Fair in Friedrichshafen from 14 to 17 July 2011.
